

Head of Hardware Development – Rental Bikes / Stations (m/f/d)

nextbike is the European bike share market leader. We sustainably move millions of people across our global communities in our pursuit of a transport revolution. Whether a managing director, developer, project manager or service employee - we are all united by the passion to pursue meaningful work every day. We have established bike sharing as a key component of urban mobility in nearly 300 cities worldwide. And we are far from finished, which is why we need great people like you to join our team.

LOCATION

Leipzig

SCOPE OF THE JOB

Fulltime

START

Immediately

YOUR JOB

- You plan and steer the implementation of development projects for our innovative and world-leading bike rental system
- You bear the overall responsibility for the work of the Hardware Development department and external service providers
- You drive the further development of the organisational structure and process organisation of your department
- You create budget and resource plans for development projects (incl. outsourcing of projects)
- You contribute to the continuous optimisation of our wheel designs for better TCO and user quality as well as to the development of new vehicle types and stations
- You regularly exchange information with the neighbouring departments and report directly to management.

ABOUT YOU

- You have a degree in engineering, industrial engineering or a related discipline
- You have at least three years of management experience in the development area with a focus on hardware / construction or a comparable area
- Like us, you have a passion for sustainable mobility, bicycles, and have a very good knowledge of bikes and their components.
- You have a structured way of working and experience with agile project management methods (e.g. Scrum Master)
- You have strong communication and social skills
- You speak and write business fluent German and English

BENEFITS

- Contributing to meaningful work that improves our cities
- Flexible working
- Corporate health management
- A unique and collaborative team culture and flat hierarchies
- An international network of colleagues
- Free use of nextbikes worldwide

TO APPLY

We look forward to receiving your application, including a cover letter, CV, your salary expectations, and a possible start date at jobs.production@nextbike.com. Your contact is Mr. Robin Blitzner.